Kenyon's 15 Men's Suits

When you seek economy, ask your merchant to show you this $15 Suit. Compare it with one that costs $25, and see wherein lies the difference. It does not lie in the wearing qualities, surely not in the style and fit. The great difference is one of price, caused by more than one reason—made in the largest factories of their kind in the world.

Inconsiderate. Lawyer (to client)—It is an unheard-of thing for you to murder an old lady for the sake of forty cents! You didn't get enough even to pay your lawyer.—Soleil.

STUPID PEOPLE.

Couldn't Tell What Grew Up Straight and Was Served on Toast.

Never ask any one to supply you with a missing word, says a writer in the Atchison Globe, and if the experience which he relates is typical it is good advice. A woman was engaged recently in writing a letter to a friend, in which she was telling of what they had to eat at a party. She was getting along very well when all of a sudden she stopped to think. "What," she called to her family, "is that green stuff that grows up straight?"

"Evergreen trees," some one replied. "Oh, no," said the woman; "I mean something to eat."

"Onions," was the reply. "No," she said, "not onions." "Lettuce," "beans," "peas," and so on, were all called out by the family, all anxious to supply the missing word. "None of them is right," said the woman. Then she tried a new tack. "What is it," she said, "they serve on toast?"

"Poached eggs," said one member of the family. "Jam," said another. Then the woman got up, tore her letter into pieces and put the thing off till later on.

Three days later she was in a grocery store and saw something marked "15 cents a bunch" that sent her running all the way home.

"It was asparagus," she cried. "I should think some of you might have known it was asparagus! Didn't I say it grew up straight and was served on toast?"

ABSURD FASHIONS.

Hairdressing and Hats in the Time of Marie Antoinette.

Some of the fashions in France during the reign of unfortunate Queen Marie Antoinette were exceedingly absurd, particularly hairdressing and hats, which were trimmed with such an extravagant wealth of feathers that the coaches had to have their seats lowered. According to Mme. Campan, "mothers and husbands murmured, and the general rumor was that the queen would ruin the French ladies."

One day Louis XVI. decided to forbid the court in a body to follow the royal train in coaches. In order to be free he wished only to permit real sportsmen to attend. The noble ladies immediately rebelled, and the Princess of Monaco criticised the decision by means of her headpiece, upon which arose a miniature royal coach, followed by two gentlemen on foot in gaiters. On the left of this was displayed a cypress garland with black tears, the large roots being formed of crape.

More absurd still was the hairdressing of the mother of Louis Philippe, upon whose head every one could admire her son, the Duc de Beaujolais, in the arms of his nurse as well as a parrot pecking at a cherry.

Her Only Criticism.

Little Dorothy not only liked her tea and coffee to have the appearance of being "real and truly," but she also liked to taste the flavor of each. One afternoon her mother took her to a friend's home where tea was served at 5 o'clock.

The hostess gave to Dorothy what she usually gave to her own children. Of Dorothy's age, in the line of liquid refreshment—viz. hot water, sugar and milk. Dorothy tasted hers politely and ate her little cakes.

"Why, Dorothy, you aren't drinking your tea, dear. Isn't it sweet enough?" asked the hostess.

"Yes, Mrs. C. it's sweet enough," replied the child.

"Then why aren't you taking it?" "It's too dull," she replied.—New York Times.

Another Meaning.

A traveler to the north on the Great Northern railway, having delivered his luggage to the care of an alert railway porter, proceeded to make himself comfortable in the corner of a first class smoking compartment. The porter, having performed his duty, came to the carriage to report, not without expectation of acceptable reward.

"Well," said the passenger, "I see by the letters 'G. N. R.' on your cap, 'Gratuities never received.'"

"So you're that, sir," replied the porter, touching his cap. "It might mean 'gratuities never refused.' And the way that porter smiled when he left the carriage betokened his satisfaction at the material result of his smart answer and the service he had rendered.—London Mail.

First Potatoes in Scotland.

It is claimed by a correspondent that the first person to grow potatoes in the open field in Scotland was Thomas Prentice, a day laborer in the West Barony of the parish in Glasgow, near Chapel Green. That was in the year 1728. It was about four years after that date that the 'Prentices' entered the market with them and was very successful with his experiment, as he made £200 of it, which he sunk in double interest and died at Edinburgh in 1762.—Glasgow Herald.

Strictly Legal.

"What is a young man to do when his attention has been arrested by a pretty girl?"

"Why, carry his case to court, of course!"—Red Iten.

Sartorial.

"No! I shouldn't call her great. You can understand every word she sings."—Detroit Free Press.

BOKHARA THE NOBLE.

A City That Does Not Live Up to Its High Sounding Title.

The same manners and customs prevail in the Bokhara of today that were familiar to our night prowling friend of Bagdad. A blindfolded horse still plods round and round beneath a beam, grinding the corn between an upper and a nether millstone. The cotton is still carded by the primitive agency of a double bow, the smaller one affixed to the ceiling and the larger one attached to it by a cord and struck by a mallet so as to cause a sharp rebound. The reis-dharlat, or censor of the morals, still rides slowly through the town, compelling the children to attend the schools and their parents the mosques, inspecting the weights and measures and keeping a watch over the behavior of the community as a whole. When a tradesman is found guilty of cheating he is stripped bare in the street, forced to his knees and flogged with a stirrup leather by one of the censor's attendants.

The world moves slowly in Bokhara. The city gates still close with the setting sun. After dark no one is allowed abroad, the only sound at night being the melancholy beating of the watchman's drum as he patrols the streets with a lantern in his quest, unlike Diogenes, of a dishonest man.

With its fifth, fausticism, vice, cruelty and corruption, Bokhara the Noble, as its people insist on calling it, comes nearer to being a hell on earth than any place I know, and that is the best that I can say about it.—E. Alexander Powell in Everybody's.

PEARL DIVERS OF JAPAN.

Women and Young Girls Who Are Expert Swimmers.

The pearl divers of Japan are the women. Along the coast of the bay of Ago and the bay of Gokasho the thirteen and fourteen year old girls, after they have finished their primary school work, go to sea and learn to dive. They are in the water and learn to swim almost from babyhood, and they spend most of their time in the water except in the coldest season, from the end of December to the beginning of February.

Even during the most inclement of seasons they sometimes dive for pearls. They wear a special dress, white undergarment and the hair twisted up into a hard knot. The eyes are protected by glasses to prevent the entrance of water. Tubs are suspended from the waist.

A boat in command of a man is assigned to every five to ten women divers to carry them to and from the fishing grounds. When the divers arrive on the grounds they leap into the water at once and begin to gather oysters at the bottom. The oysters are dropped into the tubs suspended from their waists.

When these vessels are filled the divers are raised to the surface and jump into the boats. They dive to a depth of from five to thirty fathoms without any special apparatus and retain their breath while remaining under water from one to three minutes. Their ages vary from thirteen to forty years, and between twenty-five and thirty-five they are at their prime.—New York Sun.

Mark Twain in Parliament.

After a visit to England once Mark Twain said on his return to New York: "Among other honors heaped upon me by Englishmen was that of being photographed in parliament. I am not a member of parliament. But neither am I a member of congress. Has any fellow American suggested that I should be photographed in congress? No. I blush to say that they have not. And yet here is an honor that might without risk be bestowed on any great man. And yet it was bestowed upon Washington, Jefferson or Lincoln. When I saw that photograph, with the author of parliaments in the background, and realized my advancing years I said to myself: Here are two noble monuments of antiquity—two shining examples of the survival of the fittest!"

Liberia.

Liberia shares with Haiti the distinction of being the only place in the world where the negro rules not only himself, but also such white men as dwell there. Liberia's history, has been a long record of intertribal and civil wars, although its record in this respect, it is only fair to say, is less sanguinary than that of Haiti. In fact, so careful is the Librarian of his skin when fighting is in progress that it has become a standing joke that a Librarian battlefield is the safest place on earth and that to become a soldier in Liberia is to embrace the least dangerous profession known to mankind.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Prettiest Feet.

A Swiss professor named Redorta states that not one woman in a score has a perfect foot owing to the wearing of high heeled boots and pointed toe shoes. Russian, German, American, Austrian and Dutch women, he says, have broad feet, while those of Englishwomen are too narrow to fulfill classical and healthy conditions. The women of the Latin races, excluding Frenchwomen, have the best formed and therefore the prettiest feet, the professor says.

MARKETS

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—WHEAT—Brokers were divided in opinion as to the character of buying yesterday. The most showy buying was the covering of important lines for local leaders. There was other buying which some regarded as of an investment character. There is just enough decrease in the marketing of wheat in this country to encourage bulls in still making a fight on the buying side on the breaks. Without something in the way of positive bull news we think prices will soon be on the down grade again.

CORN—It is noted that certain cash interests are friendly to the buying side because of small local stocks. On the other side weather conditions are favorable and a larger movement is expected. Unless corn raisers and the public come into corn futures on the buying side because of lower prices, we think the local trade will conduct a bear market.

OATS—We think there can be no mistake in securing profits on short lines. At the same time if there is any further display of heaviness in corn, oats futures will be forced to follow.

PROVISIONS—Gelt says 16,000 hogs against 15,000 estimated and 18,000 last year. The movement continues under last year which is just now the controlling feature of the market. The cash trade is quiet from hand to mouth owing to the high premium over next year's futures.

The Gaelic A B C.

Every letter in the Gaelic alphabet is represented by a tree. The alphabet of today consists of eighteen letters,—in ancient Gaelic seventeen,—and now, as of old, all the letters with the exception of g, t and u, which stand for ivy, furze and heather, are called after trees.

The Gaelic a b c of today runs: alin, beite, coll, dur, eagh, fearn, gath, huath, loch, lus, muin, nula, oir, pelt, ruis, sull, teine, ur, which is equivalent to saying: elm, birch, hazel, oak, aspen, alder, ivy, white-thorn, lew, rowan or quicken, vine, ash, spindle-tree, pine, elder, willow, furze, heath.

In the ancient Gaelic alphabet the letter h (the huath or white-thorn) does not exist. The alphabet is called the beith-lus-muin, because b l u, and not a b c, are its first three letters.—Youth's Companion.
